McKLords Ltd. Awarded Global ISO 9001

THE BRITISH Standards Institute (BSI), the world's number one standards-making body, has awarded leading chemicals firm, McKLords Ltd. global ISO 9001 registration as part of its Continuous Improvement Programme.

McKLords, which is based at Kinmel Park Industrial Estate, Bodelwyddan in Denbighshire, produces tailor made items for the country's leading High Street retailers and makes industrial chemicals for the UK's top blue chip companies.

The ISO 9000 family of standards represents an international consensus on good management practices with the aim of ensuring that an organization can continually deliver the product or services that meet the client's quality requirements.

McKLords' Director, Ian McKerrow explained: "This award represents an upgrade on the previous ISO standard we had already achieved. It was required by the major blue chip companies who are our suppliers and clients, including those from the automotive and furniture industries, who buy chemicals from us. It means a great deal to us and to those companies we work with and we are proud to have been granted ISO 9001."

McKLords' chemical products are used in numerous sectors including the motor and motorcycle industries, caravan companies, sportswear manufacturers and even pet shop chains. In the UK more than a third of the population will use a McKLords' product everyday.

To be certified to the ISO 9001 standard, companies must implement a quality management system (QMS) embracing all business activities, including: staff training, customer interaction, meeting customer requirements, product design and development, purchasing materials and services, and delivering products and services.

Certification to ISO 9001 reinforces to customers, through an independent third party, that McKLords operates a QMS in accordance with the standard.
